Rival Technologies Inc. – Patent Awarded for Intellectual Property

Las Vegas, Nevada, February 8, 2007 - Rival Technologies Inc. (Pink Sheets - Symbol RVTI) is pleased to report it has been notified that the patent for CWI technology, applied for in May 2005, was awarded by the U.S. patent office on January 10, 2007.

This worldwide patent protects our water injection technology which provides a cost-effective solution for reducing noxious emissions, and improving fuel efficiency. The patent comes at a time when commercial applications of diesel engines worldwide are subjected to broadening regulations setting strict emissions standards and fuel costs hover at unprecedented levels.

A recently completed market research study undertaken by Rival Technologies indicates there is a substantial market for the technology. Business development activities are under consideration to choose the best way to penetrate this emerging billion-dollar industry.

Rival is focused on developing emerging technologies that benefit the environment, reduce global warming, and have extraordinary market potential. The company is in a sound financial position, with sufficient cash on hand to fund current operations for the next 24 months. All regulatory filings will be up to date by March, 2007 and the company will resume trading on the OTCBB shortly thereafter.
